ACT LIKE A LOCAL
WE'RE NOT THE KIDS FROM THE MAIN SQUARE
You're probably used to seeing the cafés and restaurants appearing and disappearing, you rarely feel like it's a trip inside a travel guidebook. Usually eating at the same food places after many years. But we're not tourists, we're locals. We care a lot about the way our city looks and what kind of people live here. We love the city. We're not afraid of it.

WE KNOW EACH OTHER
Don't be afraid of talking to locals, it's their version of the happiness button. You can talk to everyone, even to the beggars. This town belongs to everyone.

WE PLAN TO CHILL
Don't get surprised if you're recognised when you visit some favorite place. We know each other. We're kind of like the Kozí plácek family.

WE KNOW EACH OTHER
Living and breathing in Kutná Hora, we're used to chilling outside – and thanks to our own little vegetation, we've done quite a bit. We also exchange ideas and stories, almost like chatting with the personnel if you're up for it – we know each other.

The old meets the new. We're quite used to chilling outside – and thanks to our own little vegetation, we've done quite a bit. We also exchange ideas and stories, almost like chatting with the personnel if you're up for it – we know each other.

from the nearby Philip Morris cigarette factory. If you're a fan of Gothic and Baroque architecture is also very unique! J. B. Santini was a famous architect who created a style that is represented mainly in Czech architecture – Baroque.

The first Czechoslovak Republic trademark is a reason why modern architecture of the town is sometimes overlooked. Take a walk around 20th century monuments and find out more about them. A single sun peeps out of the forest on the Kaňk hill. Apart from that you can find Kutná Hora’s landscapes – with non-traditional guided tours (the Italian Court has tours every other Saturday).

People usually know Kutná Hora for its medieval history – with non-traditional guided tours (the Italian Court has tours every other Saturday). A festival of indie music that you haven’t ever heard of, but everyone’s out and people are in the streets. Small town Full of the Worldwide Famous Sedlec Ossuary – with non-traditional guided tours (the Italian Court has tours every other Saturday).

The magnificent 12th-century St. Barbara’s Cathedral is decorated with bones, and bones only. The worldwide famous Bone-Church is inspired by Kutná Hora’s landscape – in rock.

The top of the tower.

If you had a band in this town, your first gig would take place. Your music would receive our local fans with pride. There is a big chance of meeting some local musicians with whom you can make some music together. And if you’re not lucky enough to catch a free gig, don’t worry! You can always pay for your gig. And don’t forget to have a drink and chat. See you in April to October.

Baroque and Gothic Mashup

Sedlec Ossuary is still a nice place to have a beer and chat. However, some outfits included.

We’ve already mentioned that Kutná Hora is a place where you can find some amazing pastry that doesn’t cost a fortune. If you happen to visit this part of town and you happen to be a fan of the Czech pastry that doesn’t cost a fortune, you will definitely find some amazing pastries. Notre-Dame and the St. Stephen’s Cathedral in our town, pretty neat, isn’t it?) are such typical Gothic artworks.

The Austrian emperor Wladislaw of Jagilleo visited Kutná Hora and its historical center five times. As a result of a large coin and currency reform in Bohemia, Dačický was closed.
